

SEMINARY HIGHLIGHT: AUGUST 23, 2020

NOAH & TARIN MADDEN

NEW ORLEANS BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Noah and Tarin Madden are students at New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary (NOBTS). Noah is working on his master of divinity, and Tarin is working on her master's in counseling. Together, they will be a great team. Thanks to NOBTS, the Maddens will be equipped for a lifetime of ministry.

We're supporting them as they prepare for ministry because our church supports NOBTS through our Cooperative Program giving. The Cooperative Program works to lower costs for students, so they can stay out of student debt and focus on the ministry ahead of them.

NOBTS is one of six Southern Baptist seminaries we support in the U.S. — together they have more than 18,000 students. These 18,000 students are being equipped to take the gospel and teach God's word wherever they are led.

But Noah and Tarin aren't just in seminary; they are already helping to plant a new church in New Orleans by discipling young adults who have come to faith in Christ.

After they graduate, Noah and Tarin will move to Boston as missionaries with the North American Mission Board. While in Boston, they will be a part of a new church plant that will be a safe place for the over six million lost people in Boston.

Through the Cooperative Program, we will support them as they move to Boston, as well. Let's ask God to bless their studies and their ministry. Let's also pray for New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary and the students who are being equipped for ministry there.
